Follow Up Flag: Follow up
Flag Status: Flagged

The UN number would be found on the MSDS

My guess is

UN 2794 8 Batteries, wet, filled with acid, electric storage

Here is the proper NMFC

60680

Batteries or Cells, listed in 49 CFR §172.101, Hazardous Materials Table, see Note, item 60702, in boxes or Package 827, see Note, item 60703:

Sub 1

Offered for transportation as a Hazard Class 4, 8 or 9

So, class 70

Hi Kiel,

I think they are considered hazmat. They are not sealed, but capped, and has acid in them.

Hi Kiel,

Do you happen to know the UN number or shipping class for forklift batteries (flooded lead acid, not sealed).

We ship a lot of these, and your site requires this info to quote.

Hi Kiel,

Thank you.
I will login and take a look.

We ship around the country frequently. I will also contact you after I go through the latest update in our account.

Best regards,

Yan,

Your quotes came across my desk late last night. Give me a call or reach out via email when you have a minute. I have already changed the pricing on your account to be significantly more aggressive. I have the ability to fine tune them beyond what you will see online.
